Bringing together different voices from all the countries along the Mediterranean basin, the authors in this book were invited to write about the light in their specific location. Subjective commentary, poetic descriptions, and abstract reflections were all welcome. The result is a coming-together that transcends borders, a symphony of testimonies that provides opportunities for reading in a shared space that goes beyond what we have grown accustomed to and, like a ray of sunlight cutting through the air, reminds us we all live under the same sun.
