Michelangelo Pistoletto's Third Paradise is a manifesto—an artist's dream with many details taken from the present world: To provide relief from the many grievous conditions nowadays and from the many ideas, approaches and realisations in the economic, social and political practice; and to contribute to that ever-changing world with much understanding, responsibility and solidarity, in order to still ensure that our children and their children, experience conditions worthy of life Pistoletto views art from a crucial position. Art is a mediator as well as an agent of meaningful, active practice that intervenes in the other areas of the social field, initiates economically and ecologically compatible projects, and builds a laboratory, where models of living and production are invented and tested out.
